U. S. Hears From
Man Who Knows About
Korea — Pauley

Yesterday in Washington the Senate Armed Services Committee heard the whole story about Korea — told by Edwin W. Pauley, who headed a United States Commission on Reparations that went into North Korea in 1946 just after the close of World War II.

Pauley said that even then the Russians indicated they were in North Korea "for keeps."

This is the same Pauley who, back in 1948, declared Russia should be compelled to comply with her agreements on Korea. Yesterday he was asked if the United States should have gone to war to force compliance. He replied:

"If you couldn't do anything short of that, that was my recommendation then — and is now."

Senator Tydings, Maryland Democrat, then asked: "When Russia refused to allow the United Nations Commission to go into North Korea (in 1947), would you have declared war on Russia?"

"Yes," said Pauley.

Regarding his own visit to North Korea, in 1946, Pauley reported that "even though we represented the United States we were treated more like prisoners than anything else."

"Even then the USSR was already arming itself for a stay in North Korea — even if it was . . . to be later propagandized that they had gone home."

This is the story of four years ago — the story of how Russia started double-crossing her World War II allies just as soon as we had completed the job of saving her own precious skin from Hitler's armies.

It's a story to anger all Americans, a story to strengthen their resolve to find out right now where we stand with regard to Russia. Does it mean direct war with the USSR? The average American guess is "No."

Russia has before her the example of Germany, most efficient of all military machines, which overran all of Europe and yet lost the war and was physically destroyed. It looks like good percentage to figure Russia will avoid a direct showdown.

British Forest Expert Visits Hope Area

Sir Harold Glover, a representative of the British Forestry and Conservation Service of India, spent two days this week in the vicinity of Hope, observing American methods of forest management and soil conservation. He was accompanied on this visit by Soil Conservation Service Foresters H. C. Mitchell of Ft. Worth, Texas, and J. M. Case of Hope.

Mr. Glover, who was knighted by the King of England for his activities in conservation, has just completed a series of lectures in South America and Mexico. He left Hope by car this morning enroute to Dallas, where he will take a plane to New York, and return to England.

Assemblies of God to Meet Near Bradley

The August Sectional Fellowship Meeting of the Hope Section of the Arkansas District Council of the Assemblies of God will be entertained by the Pleasant Valley Assembly near Bradley, Thursday, Aug. 10. Services will begin at 2 and 8 p.m. The meeting will be under the direction of Rev. H. Paul Holdridge, Presbyterian of the Section, and eighteen churches are expected to be represented.

'I Will Not Hoard' Club Is Being Organized

Denver, Aug. 4 — (AP) — The I-Will-Not-Hoard club is gaining membership in the Rocky Mountain areas. Its backers are hoping it will become a national setup.

The club was originated by Trace McCracken, publisher of a string of newspapers in Wyoming. Today the Denver Post joined the movement, publishing a membership form on its front page.

Two Highway Workers Killed by Transport

Two highway department road repairmen were killed near Emmet late yesterday when a motor transport truck crashed through a protective barricade on Highway 67.

The dead: Benny W. Jones, 49, of Hope and Paul W. Lambert, 50, of Prescott. A third man in the crew, Jim Thomas, who vainly tried to flag down the truck was uninjured. Jones died shortly after the accident and Lambert died in the Prescott hospital about midnight last night.

A Hope road transport driver, Theodore F. Ryan, 30 of Lebanon, Ind., guilty of reckless driving and negligent homicide and ordered him held for grand jury action with bond fixed at $1000.

State trooper Guy Downing of Hope said the accident occurred on a straight section of the road. The barricade had been set up to create a one-way traffic lane around the patching crew working on a 20-yard section of the road.

Lambert was shoveling hot asphalt from the truck and Jones was raking it into place when the transport vehicle overran them. Ryan told investigating officers he saw the flagman at the barricade but thought he was waving him on instead of signaling to stop. At this morning's inquest Ryan did not take the stand.

The big trailer overturned, causing considerable damage to the new cars it carried and the highway department truck was demolished. Traffic was halted while the wreckage was being cleared away.

Funeral services for Mr. Jones were to be held today at 4 p.m. by the Rev. Jess Hamilton.

He is survived by his wife, two brothers, Rob of Hope and Owen of Midland, Texas, two sisters, Mrs. Mae Boyett of Hope and Mrs. Linnie Fuller of Stamps.

Active pallbearers: Roy and Lester Mullins, Truman Arrington, Lee Collier, Preston Putman and Harvey Allen.

Use of South Koreans by the Northern Reds Believed Be Good Sign for Americans

By HAL BOYLE

With U. S. Troops in Korea (AP)—Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

Some prisoners of war report that the Red army is beginning to use South Korean recruits to replace casualties in heavy fighting. "These people (North Koreans) have been damn well trained," said Lt. Col. James W. Snee of Wilkes Barre, Pa. "If they now have to start using recruits from the South, that's a good sign for us."

He said the enemy artillery and mortar fire is very accurate and explained it this way: "They have good observation. And a lot of their information comes from underground channels — from agents inside our lines."

A favorite trick of the Reds is to put a command post under fire to try to demoralize it as they infiltrate into American artillery positions. That leaves the Yank in fantry without support — and the Reds then come streaming through.

How can they be stopped? "We will have a stabilized line when a soldier in a hill position can look over five yards and say 'Hi, Joe to another soldier,'" Snee said. "Then if we have prop or reserves we can crack them back anywhere they get something through."

Staff officers along the front are convinced that most of the atrocity stories about the conduct of Red troops are true.

"The guerrillas take no prisoners at all," one said. "the regular North Korean troops will take prisoners if they are able to march. But they won't fool around with wounded prisoners."

These are shot or bayoneted, he said.

One prisoner who escaped the Reds said their army seemed to be made up largely of noncoms and young Communist enthusiasts.

142nd Alerted for Service in September

Little Rock, Aug. 4 (AP)—The state military department has announced impending mobilization of the last remaining unit of the 142nd Field Artillery group, Arkansas National Guard.

The department said last night the group's headquarters battery, stationed at Fayetteville, would be mobilized for federal service early in September.

Previously similar alerting orders had been issued for the group's 938th and 937th field artillery battalions, also stationed at Fayetteville.

Col. W. C. Smith of Fayetteville is the 142nd's commanding officer.

Malik's Proposal Voted Down by U. N. Council

Lake Success, Aug. 4 (AP)—The United Nations security council comes to grips with the Korean war again today after beating down a three-day Russian attempt to sidetrack the issue.

The council voted 8 to 1 yesterday to take up as the first order of business today a United States resolution condemning North Korean defiance of the United Nations and asking all countries to help localize the conflict.

A bitter verbal exchange between the council twice again rejected Soviet attempts to put the question of seating Communist China in the U. N. first on the agenda.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik, who ended his seven-month boycott of the U. N. to take over presidency of the council Aug. 1, preceded the vote with a vitriolic attack charging the United States with provoking the war in Korea.

U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin denounced Malik's charges as a new slander, a new threat, a new provocation. It was one of the most heated exchanges ever heard in the council chamber.

Austin said he doubted that the Soviet union wanted the council to go into "the question of whose design and whose command brought about the unleashing of this new wave of tragedy and bloodshed which has overtaken the international community."

House Junks Wage, Price Curb Bill

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—The house today junked the mandatory wage and price curb bill, and started over on the job of writing an economic control measure.

The mandatory wage price bill — providing for ceilings to go on automatically if living costs rise 3 per cent above the level of June 15 — was denounced yesterday by President Truman.

The house threw it out on a standing vote of 172 to 161 on which the members were not recorded by name. The idea had been tentatively approved yesterday 159 to 128.

The action left before the house a controls bill providing only stand-by allocation and priorities powers for the President, authority to requisition war-needed materials, to grant production loans and to curb credits.

This bill, however, was subject to amendment to add wage-price controls.

The junking of the mandatory bill climaxed four days of house maneuvering in this order: The banking committee sent to the house floor a bill providing only the limited controls Mr. Truman had asked — not including wage-price powers.

With congress clamoring for some sort of wage-price controls, Democratic leaders offered a substitute providing power for Mr. Truman to slap ceilings on prices and wages, and ration goods, when and if he thinks those steps are needed.

By adoption of amendments, the house proceeded to rewrite the substitute. It voted for mandatory price-wage controls, limited allocation of goods to eight months, added a "buy American" clause, and forbade controls on commodity market speculation.

The result was something completely unacceptable to the Truman administration.

So today's vote tossed out the amended substitute and left the house back where it started — with the banking committee's bill.

Russian Policy Appears to Be Paying Off

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—A war-tested Russian policy — accumulation of a huge stockpile of arms before embarking on a campaign — seems to be paying off for the North Koreans.

That explanation is offered in some military quarters here when the question is asked: How are the Red Koreans able to keep on pouring immense amounts of ammunition and equipment into a bitter war already five weeks old?

Since Russia generally is supposed to have mapped the plans for the attack on the republic of South Korea and to be directing it now by remote control, it is assumed that all the vital planning of supplies was dictated by Russian army experts.

During World War II, Russia sometimes exasperated her Western Allies by delaying a needed offensive against the Germans for weeks and months. Not until she had built up vast supply dumps, far beyond any foreseeable requirements, would she launch the offensive.

This practice was applied to Russia's satellite army of North Koreans. The jump-off for the invasion.

Paul Robeson's Passport Is Cancelled

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—Paul Robeson's passport has been cancelled by the state department. A spokesman said the department felt the Negro singer's actions were not always in the interest of the United States.

Robeson has made frequent trips abroad, including a number of visits to Russia. He has spoken with high approval of Communists and their aims.

The spokesman said Robeson had been asked to give up his passport — without which he cannot leave the country — but had refused. The department then notified immigration and diplomatic officials that the passport was void.

Robeson was not immediately available for comment.

Fayetteville VA to Examine Inductees

Fayetteville, Aug. 4 (AP)—The veterans administration hospital here will examine 450 men as prospective inductees into military service on Aug. 21-23.

Use of the VA hospital will be an emergency measure until the army is able to process men in its own facilities.

An army spokesman at Little Rock said he believed the men ordered to the Fayetteville hospital probably were national guardsmen being mustered into federal service.

Mrs. America Contest at Saenger 8th

The first Mrs. America elimination contest will be staged at the Saenger theater next Tuesday night, Aug. 8 it was announced today by L. B. Tooley of Radio-Station KXAR. The contest will be conducted by George Frazier, master of ceremonies.

Contestants have been notified to appear at the Saenger for the eliminations. Each contestant has been instructed to be prepared to demonstrate one or more of her homemaking skills such as cooking, dress-making, time-saving gadgets, crocheting, ect. Mr. Frazier will interview aspirant individually. In addition, each candidate will be required to appear in a bathing suit for the beauty judging portion of the contest.

Judges for the first Mrs. America elimination have been carefully selected for the following qualifications: Knowledge of Home economy and beauty judging. Three judges will select the winner in this manner: 50 points on homemaking ability and 50 points on beauty.

The public is invited to attend the first contest at the Saenger theatre. Admission price will be the regular theatre price and the Saenger will run their regularly scheduled picture on that night. Those attending will be allowed to see both the Mrs. America contest and the movie.

The winner of this contest will have the right to appear in the Mrs. Arkansas contest here in Hope three weeks later. All entrants will receive a gift.

All married women planning to enter the Mrs. America contest should forward their entry blanks at once to Radio Station KXAR as the deadline of Aug. 15 is very near.

Britain Wants U. S. to Help Her Defense

London, Aug. 4 (AP)—Britain announced last night she is ready to boost her defense spending to $9,520,000,000 over the next three years if America will help her economy absorb the shock.

If agreement with the U. S. can be worked out — and state department officials indicated that most of the increase would go for production of new arms and equipment for Atlantic pact forces.

Britain's offer to enlarge her contributions to Western defense came in the form of a memorandum to the United States replying to an American request for such information.

The U. S. had asked all Atlantic pact countries to state by Aug. 5 what they propose to contribute to

Landowners Should Order Pine Trees Early

Landowners planning to plant pine trees this winter are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. The Soil Conservation District is attempting to furnish trees free of charge to all who purchase trees from the State Nursery, according to John Keck, SCS Conservationist.

A tree planting machine, made available by the Hope Chamber of Commerce, will plant trees for $5.00 per thousand, or $3.50 per acre.

Orders should be placed with the Chamber of Commerce, or the Soil Conservation Service office in the Courthouse by August 15. The trees may be paid for when they are delivered in December.

To Call 62,000 Reservists in 2 Months; Extra Time for Holders of Key Jobs

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—The army announced today it will call out 62,000 individual reservists during September and October, "with or without their consent," for 21 months of duty.

They will come from a pool of about 185,000 enlisted male reservists who are not members of the organized reserve corps units. They will be used primarily to bring the national guard and organized reserve units to full strength.

The first 32,000 will be in camp by September 15, the remainder by the middle of October, the army's announcement said.

Those called first will be between 19 and 25 years old. Priority will be determined by the number of dependents. Those with no dependents are to be called first, those with one dependent, second, and those with more than one dependent later on.

This was the first time the army has called up enlisted reservists who are not in units, and whose units have not yet been called out, are exempt from the September-October call. Evidently it is planned to call them out as units.

Most of the enlisted reserves are veterans of World War II. The army said that those members serving reserve enlistments for three to six years under the terms of the selective service act of 1948 will be subject to call on the same basis as all other reserves. This group, which is part of the 185,000-man pool, includes men who served on active duty for less than three years after the war and then reverted to reserve status.

The reserves will come from all parts of the nation. Quotas for army areas, which are about in proportion to the total strength of the enlisted reserve corps in those areas, are as follows:

First Army (New York, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey) 9,418.

Second Army (Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Kentucky) 13,012.

Third Army (Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida) 5,487.

Fourth Army (Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico) 6,230.

Fifth Army (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming) 18,406.

Sixth Army (California, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, Arizona) 9,449.

No guardsman or reservist will be deferred unless he is engaged in a "critical occupation necessary to a highly essential activity," and unless he cannot be satisfactorily replaced.

Either the man or his employer can apply for deferment, but not until he has actually been called to active duty.

Four national guard divisions have recently been called. Members of these outfits now may apply for deferment if they wish.

Incidentally, draft director Lewis B. Hershey told a reporter last night that each state will receive credit against its future monthly draft quotas for all national guardsmen or reservists called to active duty, and for all men who enlist.

Cemetery Cleaning

There will be a working at Huckabee Cemetery at Evening Shade Church south of Highway 59, Wednesday August 9. All interested persons are urged to attend and help.

Automobiles driven by Grady A. Yerger and Maxine Flowers collided at South Hazel and East 4th intersection yesterday resulting in minor damage. Nobody was hurt. City police investigated.

Leave 600 Red Dead in Single Engagement

By DON WHITEHEAD

On the Southern Korean front, Aug. 4 (AP)—American forces counted more than 600 dead today after a battle shattered the offensive of the North Korean army drive on the southern city of Maseu.

The battle was yesterday's. But not until today was the magnitude of the victory ascertained.

The fight forced the North Koreans to withdraw. It dealt their build-up for the first push toward Maseu, on the way to the main American base at Pusan.

The battle took place on the 24th regimental combat line, between the 24th and 25th regiments of the 24th Division of the United States Army.

The Red colonel in command of the operation was killed. The enemy's attack was repulsed as a result of fierce fighting. The American command post in the area was not hit.

McNabb's first battalion turned up the night before and captured 22 miles of enemy lines. The men were sleeping in a dugout in the command post.

The enemy slipped down the hills. They ran into the trap.

The battle raged through the night and into the morning. The South Korean troops reported bringing up reinforcements today for their defense push on Pusan. The all-in port 35 miles to the east.

The Americans newly forced by elements of the Marine and Second Infantry, confronted continued pressure against the front line. Their carrying capacity in Korea.

General MacArthur's press summary issued at 11 p.m. today (4:10 a.m. Friday) placed the fighting scene in the area running from 20 miles southeast to 11 miles east of Maseu, northeast of Chikju.

It said in that area alone enemy dead had been estimated after the hot battle of Thursday.

Front-line field dispatches, after later information, placed the scene of the American counterattack eight miles west of Maseu. That would be 20 miles of Chikju and 35 miles from Maseu.

It was there, reported, that the 600 enemy dead were counted. Don Whitehead, the 600 enemy dead were counted after the 24th regimental battle team of the U. S. 24th Infantry division met a North Korean force.

FUNNY FACE

By James Gunn

Copyright 1950 by J. M. Gunn, Inc.

HAD Ellie written me that she was looking for Jack Lanning. I could have helped her. Because it was about that time that I ran into him quite unexpectedly.

I was in Chicago sitting in a very important vice president's outer office, waiting to go over some contracts, when Jack came in. He had some papers in his hand and obviously worked there. I think we were equally astonished, but we managed to make a date for dinner after my business conference.

When we met, we had a few drinks, exchanged banalities, and covered each other over. He made me feel odd. His hair had gone back a little at the temples, and there were some new lines in his face, but otherwise he looked exactly the same. He was as infectious and likable as ever.

He told me about his career in the theater, ending with the debacle at Long Beach. From there he had hitch-hiked East. He located his job through one of his college friends. "It was kind of a late start," he admitted. "I'm still nothing but a high-class office boy. Within the next few years, though, I think I'll be getting somewhere."

He was not married. "Why not?" I asked. "Never got around to it." He was casual enough. "What about you?"

"A girl I forgot to propose to—I don't think it would have made any difference if I had."

"That's too bad." He had no idea I was talking about Ellie. "Finally we were silent for a while, and then he said: "I wish I'd known."

"I was puzzled. 'Known what?' "That she wanted a career. I wouldn't have stopped her. But I guess she was right to do it the way she did."

"There was no point in telling him that a career was the thing furthest from Ellie's mind when she divorced him. He smiled and said: 'It gives me a bang every time I go to the movies and see little Funny Face up there. She still makes 'em laugh, doesn't she?'"

"As a matter of fact, she's much better-looking than she used to be."

"Do you think so? I suppose it's the photography. What's she like now—herself I mean?"

"Just about the same, from 'he sound of her letters. She seems to be happy."

"That's nice. She must be making a fortune, anyway." He was completely casual. He seemed at the moment to feel no more toward Ellie than he would toward any other old friend.

I was unprepared for what he said next. He looked straight at me. "Do you know why she's never married?"

"No."

"I realized with a shock that he was still in love with her. And I suspected that she loved him, but I could not say that. I said only: 'Why don't you write her? I know she'd be glad to hear from you.'"

"Why do you think?" He laughed shortly and bitterly. "When I was on the Coast I could have picked up a phone and called her. I could have driven an hour and seen her. Even then I couldn't do it. She'd probably have thought I wanted to touch her for money."

"Ellie would never think that." He was a little ashamed. "Of course, I know that. I'm sorry I said it."

I said: "Anyway, the situation's changed now. You're on your feet again."

He shook his head. "I told you. I'm only an office boy."

"Ellie wouldn't mind."

"I would." Abruptly he smiled, with his odd optimism. "But I told you I'm getting along pretty well. Maybe, in a couple of years—well, we can talk about that later." He changed the subject abruptly and we talked about old friends from college days, and what had become of them.

PERHAPS Jack's success took longer than he had hoped; he and Ellie did not meet till more than a year after the war. I looked him up the next time I went to Chicago, and found he had been transferred to the company's office in Detroit.

Ellie's career went on steadily in the meantime. Because of some casting desperation or other, she was finally given a straight dramatic role. She still had a low opinion of herself as an actress, and had no idea that she could play anything but comedy; but she played her best and was excellent as always.

Two years later she played a tragic-comic role and was nominated for the Academy Award for the best supporting actress. She did not win it, but from then on she played all kinds of roles. Her looks were improving steadily. I assumed that, because she was now playing leading roles and other women, the make-up people and cameramen were taking special pains.

Then one day I got a letter from her.

Wild Engine Hits Another Three Die

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 4 (AP)—An unmanned locomotive careened eight miles downhill and smashed into a diesel switch-engine last night, killing three trainmen.

A fourth trainman was injured. Observers estimated the runaway locomotive was moving at a speed of from 40 to 45 miles an hour when it rammed the diesel.

The smashup occurred on an overpass, 15 feet above street level in the west end of Cheyenne. The diesel was catapulted off the track against an embankment. It was pulling several freight cars when the locomotive hit it. One of these cars flipped up and over, smashing the diesel's cab, so that the bodies of the dead had to be cut loose from the mess of twisted metal.

The dead, all from Cheyenne and all crew members aboard the switch-engine, were: Albert Chambers, engineer; Thomas E. Harris, fireman; and G. R. Crago, switchman. The injured man is S. C. Stat, a switchman.

Shortly after 11:30 p. m. (EST) Union Pacific trainmen here received word that the locomotive had taken off without its crew from Borie, Wyo. Borie is a tiny junction point.

This information was accompanied by the order: "Clear the main line for trouble."

But trouble came too fast. Union Pacific officials said the locomotive's brakes failed while the engineer was out of the cab receiving orders; and while the fireman was standing behind the locomotive acting as flagman.

The runaway was a "helper" engine which had just chugged up Sherman hill.

Apparently the only eyewitness in a position to accurately describe the smashup was switchman Stat, who was sole survivor aboard the switch engine.

Stat was hospitalized with undetermined injuries and could not be reached for comment.

A column of 45 Russian-built tanks was reported speeding to the battle scene from the Taegon area, 80 miles northwest of Chinju.

Into this battle the 25th put all it had after a quick shift from the Kumchong area, to the north. The battered 24th was sent to another unidentified front when the 25th took over with expected marine and other reinforcements.

The reinforcements were troops of the U. S. First Marines, the Second Infantry division and the Fifth Regimental combat team from Hawaii. The Marines have 47 1-2 ton Pershing tanks, superbazookas and flame-throwers.

While the battle raged in the south against the hinterland of South Korean troops protecting the northern flank pulled back to the village of Plan, some 18 miles from Hamchang. They took up positions along the Nakdong's.

Promoters to Probe Price of Arkansas Broilers

Little Rock, Aug. 4 (AP)—A group of Arkansas "promoters" will attempt to find out why north-west Arkansas broilers bring high prices.

And then they'll try to apply the knowledge to other Arkansas farm products to boost the prices of these items.

The broiler survey is part of a study outlined yesterday by the marketing committee of the Arkansas economic council, state chamber of commerce.

Another phase of a marketing study, being undertaken by the committee, will be a survey of Arkansas food consumption, in relation to its production.

The committee was told that Arkansas broilers get top prices in Chicago poultry houses. The committee hopes to find out why this is so and use the information to boost prices of other Arkansas products.

Committee Chairman L. C. Barber of Little Rock said he believed Arkansas is paying millions of dollars a year for food that could be produced in the state.

The marketing study is among six surveys being made this year in a $47,000 research program on economic and social subjects in Arkansas. The University of Arkansas and the council-chamber sponsor the program.

Tex Williams on Lion Show This Sunday

Tex Williams, Capitol Records Western singing star, will be the special guest of honor on the Lion Oil "Sunday Down South" half-hour August 6, on the Lion Oil Network at 5 o'clock. The program is carried locally by KXAR.

Tex was born in Fayette County, Illinois, the youngest of eleven children. His father ran the local sawmill and blacksmith shop and taught all his children folk type music and songs that were handed down from generation to generation.

However, Tex was the only child in the Williams family to become a professional musician.

In 1948 Capitol Records signed Tex Williams as a Western recording artist. On his very first release, "Smoke Smoke! Smoke!" Tex gained nation-wide popularity. His unique singing-charming style of vocal caught the ear of the listening public and made him a great favorite with popular music fans.

Tex is also a band leader, a master of ceremonies and a composer of songs - "Smoke" is his own tune and his theme song.

The complete "Sunday Down South" program will include singing stars Snooky Lanson and Dottie Dillard - "Lige" as the comedy team-Bansley Smith and the Lion Orchestra and Chorus - and Tex Williams high-lighted in the guest star spotlight for a full half hour of musical varieties.

Press, Radio Exempt From Price Control

Washington, Aug. 3 (AP)—The house today tentatively exempted all sources of public information, including the press and radio, from proposed standby price control powers.

Without opposition, it shouted approval of an amendment by Rep. Buchanan (D-Pa.) to the administration's economic mobilization bill. The bill includes power for the President to impose price controls when needed. The amendment would:

Exempt from the President's control authority rates charged by public utilities; insurance companies; newspapers, periodicals and magazines; theaters and moving picture companies; radio and television; outdoor advertising; press associations and feature services for materials offered for publication; professional services; and for books and magazines and their periodicals.

Buchanan told the house the exemptions were the same as those embodied in the price control act of World War II. The exemptions do not apply to newspapers, the paper on which newspapers are printed.

the villain," the American declared.

Malik retorted that Austin was "hysterical and his hand wavings and shouting don't make any impression on me as a Soviet delegate. If he is trying to blackmail me he has directed his remarks to the wrong address."

British delegate Sir Gladwyn Jebb commented that Malik's "offensive and indeed irregular speech makes it completely clear that his government is determined to maintain what is the reverse of the truth."

Jean Chauvel of France branded Malik's charge of U. S. aggression in Korea "false" and added, "I repeat, it is false."

Malik also said the United Nations must choose between two paths "the path of peace and the path of war." He asserted the Soviet union and Generalissimo Stalin are the true leaders of peace.

Diplomats here wondered why Malik did not walk out yesterday after his series of defeats.

Britain

The West's overall defense program Holland yesterday announced preparations for stand-by mobilization of three divisions and measures to speed up defense production.

President Truman told a news conference in Washington last night he was very pleased with Britain's offer. He said he hoped the other Atlantic pact nations would follow suit.

Mrs. Flavia C. Kaufmann, 2436 70th Ave., Baton Rouge, Louisiana, says it is a full time job keeping tabs on her little granddaughter, Mildred Gore, but it is a job she thoroughly enjoys. Yes, everything in life for her these days is enjoyable — because she has at last found the secret of being well. She now takes HADACOL regularly, because she found she was suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin, and Iron.

Here is Mrs. Kaufmann's statement: "I have been taking HADACOL for over a year. Before I started taking HADACOL I was terribly nervous and upset all the time. I was underweight and just couldn't eat at all. My appetite was so low that I ate irregularly at all hours of the day. I tried many things to try to build up my run-down condition — nothing helped me. After taking these so-called remedies I was nervous and was sleepless as ever. Then I started taking HADACOL. After the third bottle I felt 100% better. I have gained weight, my appetite is tremendous and, best of all, I sleep well nights and my nerves are steady as can be. HADACOL is a very wonderful product. I just can't praise HADACOL enough."

HADACOL is that wonderful preparation — promising blessed relief for your indigestion, stomach disturbance (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), for normal growth in children, as well as that general run-down condition, and aches and pains of neuritis. If your system lacks Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Nicotin, HADACOL is being recommended by many doctors. Always Get on Assessments

Rock, Aug. 4 (AP)—Total assessment valuation of 11 counties operating in Arkansas reduced some $6,000,000 Arkansas Tax commission.

Total 1950 assessment figure announced yesterday by the commission is $67,109,810, a reduction of $6,000,000 from 1949.

Figure fixed by commission based on which the railroads pay property taxes to county school districts, etc. The tax itself on many mills on each of assessed valuation in the various taxing units.

Commission Chairman C. P. Hays said the net reduction was due to the commission's effort to reduce all assessments at 20 percent of true value.

The railroads received assessments, ranging up to $2,384,000 for the year.

Assessments of two, which have relatively small property taxes in Arkansas, were included in a comparison of assessments with 1949 assessments.

Rogers, was solemnized at five o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Elder and Mrs. Howard White on South Pine Street, with Elder White, Pastor of Unity Baptist church, officiating.

Miss Braden is the daughter of Mrs. A. R. Durham, and the late John M. Braden, of this city, and Mr. Rogers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff L. Rogers of Minden La.

The couple exchanged their vows before the fireplace banked with huckleberry, and flanked with tall floor baskets of white stock, and huckleberry. The mantel held an arrangement of white stock and baby breath and on each side were Mantel Candelabra burning white tapers.

The bride wore a ballerina length dress of white net over white satin, designed with soft satin folds on the waist, and very full skirt which was studded with seed pearls. Her bolero was of satin and was trimmed with French lace. Her shoulder length veil of nylon net was attached to a net calot with French lace trim and edged with lilies of the valley. She wore matching mitts of lace and carried a rosepoint handkerchief. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls, and her flower was a single white purple-throated orchid at her shoulder.

Miss Donald Sue Cooley, maid of honor, wore blue nylon net over blue satin fashioned with basque waist, cap sleeves, and portrait neckline. The skirt was bouffant and fell to the insteps of her pumps. She wore a bandeau of pink sweetheart roses and blue nylon in her hair, and matching blue mitts. Her flowers was a pink sweetheart rose corsage, outlined with blue nylon.

Joe Rogers served his brother as best man.

For her daughters wedding, Mrs. Durham chose an aqua sheer dress with black accessories and her corsage was of pink nylon and sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother, was attired in a light blue dress with black accessories and she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

When the couple left on their wedding trip to points of interest in Louisiana, the bride was wearing a lovely pink frock, with white accessories. She pinned an orchid at her shoulder.

Mrs. Roger graduated from Hope High School, and has been employed at Ward Drug Store for the past three years.

The bridegroom was graduated from Minden High School, Minden, La. and is employed by the Louisiana and Arkansas Railway Company in Hope.

Following their wedding trip, they will be at home at 100 West Avenue B.

FUNNY FACE

ELLIE said in her letter that she was coming East to do a play. "I don't know why I let myself in for this," she wrote. "I suppose it was the last choice for the part, because they couldn't get a star. It's one of those mother-daughter things, and I'm the mother, of course. The funny part is that I'm supposed to be an example of fading glamor. I'm fading, all right, but what little glamor I have belongs to my cameraman. I'll feel awfully naked on that stage, with nothing between me and the audience but my artificial eyelashes."

As it happened, I was out of town during the rehearsals. The reports from New Haven and Boston were good; the show seemed destined to be a hit. I was in the opening night audience, waiting tensely for Ellie's entrance.

I suppose most of all I wanted to see what she looked like. I remembered her first entrance that night in the San Francisco movie house, when the audience had snickered. I reminded myself not to be disappointed; the camera can be very flattering.

Then she appeared. There was the usual applause, and she waited a moment. She was dressed simply. Her figure had always been good and she had kept it beautifully. She looked much taller than I remembered her. Her whole posture was different. Her face was thinner, and the strong bones stood out. Her eyes, which had been so absurdly large in the immature face, were magnificent now. She looked years younger than I knew her to be.

Eleanor Lane was not at all laughable. She was not merely handsome or attractive. She was a beautiful woman. I have never been so startled in my life.

I did not go backstage that evening. The play was clearly "in," and Ellie's performance was superb. The next day the critics were unanimously on the rave, except for one who said sharply that Ellie was too young and too beautiful for the part. I called Ellie at her hotel a few days later and she invited me over.

Janet was there, almost 18 now, and very pretty. I told her so, and she laughed. "I'll pass," she said. "But I haven't much chance in competition with my glamorous mother."

I was amused. When she was young, Ellie would have given anything to look the way Janet looked now.

ELLIE was so magnetic as she had seemed the night before and as warm and unaffected as she had always been. She seemed to pick our old friendship up just where it had left off.

She was highly amused at the fact that she was a Broadway star. Several movie scripts had been sent to her and Ellie had read them, looking in vain for a supporting role that would suit her, when it dawned on her that she was wanted to play the lead. She thought it was immensely funny. She still considered her entire career a lucky accident, which of course it was.

We spoke of Jack only once. I told her about the time I had seen him, and asked if he had written later. She shook her head slowly. "No, no, he didn't write. When was it you saw him, exactly?" I told her, and she figured back, thoughtfully. "That must have been just about the time that—well," Then she told me about Ben Mallon.

"Such a long time ago—it doesn't seem possible," she smiled. "You're a romantic, with a great imagination. Jack's had plenty of time to be very successful. And very busy—far too busy to worry about what happened 20 years ago." I could see she had not forgotten Jack.

And one morning a few weeks later, I had a call from Jack. He was in town and wanted to have lunch with me. When I heard his voice I was delighted. I knew how Ellie would be to see him. I hoped I had been right, that he had not married.

We agreed to meet at the restaurant. I was a little late for the appointment and there was no sign of Jack. I started for the bar, when I heard my name called. I turned around. A man was coming toward me. I stared at him blankly for a moment before I said: "Jack!"

NOT only was he no longer good-looking; no one who had not known him in his youth would have believed he was ever handsome. His hair had thinned abruptly, and he was bald in front. He had put on weight. His face was rounder, and his coloring was high. He looked like a good-natured man who had enjoyed his life. He was eminently presentable—he looked amiable, prosperous, and pleasant—in a bluff, ruddy way he could have passed for a Man of Distinction—but he did not look like Jack Lanning. Like the quick Mediterranean bloom of some Latin girls, his looks had vanished and left no trace.

He did not seem to notice my astonishment. We got our table and ordered our drinks. After a while I began to recover, as Jack talked on. His smile and his voice, at least, were the same. He still had his old sweeping enthusiasm. He was apparently doing very well. Finally I asked if he had seen Ellie.

"He was silent. Then he said: 'Twice. In the theater. I figured I couldn't get up the nerve.' He smiled. It was his old, half-buoyant, half-shy smile. It had worked wonders for him 15 years before, but in his middle-aged face it only looked comical. He said: 'That's partly why I called you. I have two tickets for tonight. I thought you might take me back afterward. I need moral support.'"

Tips for Wives

Dear Miss Dix: Not long ago you wrote ten commandments about what a woman has a right to expect of her husband. If a man has to work and provide a home and then be an angel on top of it, will you please state what a husband has a right to expect from his wife?

C. P. D.

Answer: A husband has a right to expect love and tenderness and appreciation from his wife. He has a right to expect her to give daily and hourly indication that he is something more than a meal ticket to her. Husbands want to be petted and fussed over and made much of just as much as wives do.

He has a right to expect his wife not to throw away the bait with which she caught him. After marriage he has a right to expect her still to keep herself looking neat and pretty and to treat him with the same consideration that she did before marriage. If she goes slovenly and doesn't think it worth while to dress up for husband, and if she becomes peevish and fretful and faultfinding, she is nothing but a cheat who has got goods under false pretenses.

Her Part Of Bargain. A husband has a right to expect his wife to be a good housekeeper and make him a comfortable home. That is her part of the bargain just as much as supporting the home is his.

When a man marries he puts his happiness, his prosperity and his health in his wife's hands. No man can be happy unless he goes home at night to a clean and orderly home that is filled with the spirit of peace and cheerfulness. No man can prosper unless he has a wife who is thrifty and economical and a good manager.

And no man can be healthy unless he is properly fed. Whether a man is able to stand up under the strain of modern business competitions and win out or whether he is a physical wreck at 40 depends mainly upon the way his wife keeps house and the kind of meals she sets him down to.

A husband has a right to expect his wife to accept marriage with common sense. After all, every girl knows when she gets married that it is the end of her playtime and it is settling down to the real business of life.

A husband has a right to expect his wife not to offer him up as a sacrifice on the altar of his children. He has a right to expect her to give him as much time and attention and affection as she does to the baby and not to regard him after the first child is born as nothing but a slave to the children.

A man has a right to expect his wife to read and keep abreast of the times, so that she may be a companion to him. He has a right to expect her to be as amiable and pleasant to him as she is to strangers, and to do her best to keep him glad he married her in-

Hunt Spreads for Slayers of Officer

Wheatley, Aug. 4 (AP)—A deputy sheriff was shot to death, another officer was wounded and two prisoners they had in their charge disappeared near here last night.

Apparently the officers were shot with one of their own weapons.

The shooting touched off a widespread search for the escaped prisoners through the rice paddies which surround this East Arkansas town.

The two, who may have been handcuffed together, had not been retaken early today.

The slain man was chief Deputy education will be a lamp to guide her feet. For now she is so ignorant that she has no standards by which to judge men, but an education will give her a yardstick by which to measure them.

But, as the old proverb says: "You can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make it drink." You can send a girl to college, but you cannot make her study. And if your daughter does not want to study, it is a waste of time and money to try to force an education upon her.

Answer: This is a case for direct action. Write him and tell him how you feel about it. As he has not remarried, the chances are he still loves you and will be glad to make up. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Fair Enough

New York, Aug. 2 — The old concept of Vermont as a conservative Yankee Republican state is long out of date. Vermont is now a paradox, a left-wing state under nominal Republican administration. A few citizens of Vermont who maintain the traditions of their state and the old principles of the Republican party have tried for some time to call attention to the great change.

A farmer living not far from the newly-disclosed Communist center at Bethel and Randolph presents some views of an old-style Vermont Republican.

"This so-called rock-ribbed Republican state is represented by a left-winger in the senate, a named Aiken," he writes. "Aiken stands with opposition in the Republican primaries in September."

The Vermont farmer who wrote this letter was not implying communism in his use of the term "left-wing." He just meant something far to the left of the professed Republican character of the party. Indeed, although he realized that something was wrong, he did not know that a Communist colony had been corrupting the politics of the native Vermonters in a place less than an hour's drive from his farm.

He was surprised when he was told that John Abt, Nathan Witt, Lee Pressman, Alger Hiss and Marian Bachrach were, in a liberal sense of the word, his neighbors. Even if he had known they were his neighbors, this Vermont Republican farmer, like practically all other Americans, would not readily have remembered that Whittaker Chambers, in the testimony which eventually convicted Hiss of perjury with implications of treason, said: "The head of the underground group was Nathan Witt. Later, John Abt became the leader. Lee Pressman also was a member of this group, as was Alger Hiss." Or that Louis Budenz, the reformed Communist, testified that he personally knew Pressman, Abt and Witt to be members of the Communist party. Or that Budenz said on oath: "Abt's sister, Marian Bachrach, was present in a number of (party) conferences as Abt's representative."

The Bachrach woman is cited four times previously in the records of the committee on un-American activities and her name appears over articles in a monthly Communist magazine.

The genuine Republican senator from Wisconsin, Joe McCarthy, who is scorned as a worse influence than the Communist fifth column in one of these Vermont "Republican" editorials, disclosed a few days ago that Owen Lattimore, whose notoriety hardly needs review just here, had bought a joint interest in a dwelling at Bethel, Vt., with a character known as Vilhjalmur Stefansson.

This is the Scandinavian equivalent of William Stevenson, as Stefansson was known to some of his acquaintances at the University of North Dakota many years ago. His career there was turbulent. He is cited more than 30 times in the records of the committee on un-American activities.

Not only did Lattimore buy an interest in Stefansson's dwelling in a backwoods Vermont spot where Abt, Hiss, Pressman, Witt and Bachrach had settled, but less than three months later he sold it to a buyer described as a prominent Communist.

In congress Senator McCarthy called Lattimore "the top Russian espionage agent in this country." The Tydings committee, trying to vindicate President Truman's red-herring, absolved him of culpable connection with Communists.

And who bought Lattimore's interest in the house? Senator McCarthy identified the purchasers as Orday and Mary Southard.

Sale of 'E' Bonds Sags Despite War

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP) — Sales of Series E savings bonds — the "war bonds in time of conflict" — sagged in the first month of the Korean fighting.

Purchases during July totaled $317,590,000 compared with $377,813,000 in peaceful July, 1949, official figures showed today.

and said Orday had been the Communist candidate for governor and his wife a Communist candidate for state senator in Alabama in 1942.

The Associated Press reported that Lattimore said "the property was sold to a complete stranger about whom I knew nothing."

Continuing his letter, the puzzled Vermont farmer writes that "many Vermonters with whom I have talked didn't know that Aiken was among the few Republicans who held out to the end for OPA price controls and rationing. Aiken is approved by the C. I. O. He is worth a dozen Democrats to Truman, who repaid some of the debt by appointing Republican ex-Governor Ernest W. Gibson, an Aiken protege, judge of the federal court."

This is the judge who would have tried Alger Hiss had a change of venue been granted from New York to Vermont where the Communists, up to that time undisclosed and operating in the stealth almost certainly would have been able to plant at least one of their own on the jury.

Yank Tryout Camp Here Monday

The New York Yankees announced today that two of their former pitching greats, Atley, Donald and Spud Chandler, will conduct a tryout camp at Hope on August 7 and 8. They will be assisted by Charlie Johnston of Little Rock.

Atley Donald started the majors in his rookie year by winning his first 12 games of the season, and finishing up with the highest percentage of pitchers with 15 or more decisions. Throughout his minor league career, his record is spotted with long winning streaks. In 1938, he won his first twelve starts for Binghamton ending with a very respectable 10-9 record; and with Newark the following year, he won his first fourteen starts to cap the highest winning percentage of the International League ending the year with a 19-2 record for a percentage of .905. He has been a scout for the Yankees ever since his active career was cut short by an elbow operation in July, 1945.

Spud Chandler started his baseball career in 1932 with Springfield of the old Eastern League after graduating from the University of Georgia. His greatest year in baseball was in 1943, when he led the league in earned run averages, and winning percentage, tied for most wins, complete games, and shutouts. He compiled a 20-4 record with 5 shutouts included in his record and an amazingly low 1.64 earned-run average. He was also voted the Most Valuable Player in the American League, and was selected by the Sporting News as the No. 1 Major League Player of the year. Clary, of the Washington Senators, spoiled his bid for Hall of Fame recognition when he doubled as the first batter to face him on April 24, 1943. Spud pitched no-hit, no-run ball for the rest of the way. He has been a scout for the Yankees since he retired as an active player in 1947.

All boys 18-21 in this area are invited to attend. The tryouts are to be conducted at the Hope Legion Park, and any boy whose ability impresses these qualified observers will be signed to a contract with some club in the Yankee organization or sent to a later all-expense-paid Yankee baseball school.

Legionnaires Rout Oilers by 13-4 Score

The Hope Legionnaires with a big seven run outburst in the fifth inning tacked a 13-4 defeat in the second place El Dorado Oilers to aid Derrill Ross in registering his eighth win against four losses.

Ross gave up only eight hits, struck out six and walked none. The scoring blows off Ross were two home runs over the right field signs by Oiler center fielder Earl Benson. He tagged them to the first and eighth innings with Tommy Palladini on deck each time. Other than those two instances Ross had no trouble with the Oilers.

Hope went into their big fifth trailing 2-0. In that frame they put together six hits, two walks and an error for seven runs. In that frame Gary Anderson hit a line drive that Benson in center field attempted to make a shoe string catch on and it got through him and went to the center field wall for a two-run homer for Anderson. Roy Taylor hit two singles in the inning. The first started the big rally and the second came with the bases full to score two runs. Hope added two more in the sixth and whacked out four in the eighth. The legionnaires meet Red River here next Monday night.

Stars in My Crown

Joel McCrea, starring on the screen in "Stars in My Crown," Sunday and Monday, has found his own formula for living the good life. From the time he was five years old he has been wanted to be a rancher. "I've got that ranch now," says McCrea, "and it's a working one. I work off. Between pictures, I work all my time on the place and I really work at the job. The kids, David and David, are crazy about the place, too. They're my best help."

McCrea claims that the desire to own a ranch and the acting bug came on him at about the same time. He worked on California ranches during his college summer vacations and he had a pretty good idea of how much it cost to buy and operate one.

"I knew that I would have to have plenty of money if I expected to have my own ranch some day," says the popular star, "and Hollywood proved the answer. I had to go up there. I used to deliver newspapers to the stars and I'd go around the studios as a boy. It was a natural step for me to go to motion pictures. But I didn't want to be a romantic hero. I wanted to be a fighting hero. I was in stories of the fighting kind. And now I'm doing just that."

When McCrea heard the M-G-M picture "Stars in My Crown," he asked for the role of a gun-join person who brought peace and order to a lawless Southwestern town in the turbulent era which followed the Civil War.

"That Parson Gray is a man after my own heart," he says. "He was as much a true pioneer and frontiersman as were the adventurers who blazed the trails through the wilderness, or rode the pony express, or built the first railroads."

McCrea's love for the wide open spaces was literally born in him. His mother's father, Major Albert Whipple, came west with the '40ers in a covered wagon and stayed to help in the settling of California. His father's father, Major John McCrea, fought the Apache Indians and drove stage coaches with General Phineas Banning.

Ibn Batuta, 14th century explorer, traveled steadily for years, covering 75,000 miles, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

World War II Tanks Used in Korean Fight

Washington, Aug. 3 (AP)—American troops will have to fight the holding phase of the Korean campaign with World War II tanks, some of them improved since 1945. They may get some really new tanks by the time the embattled Eighth army can shift from the defensive and start the long way back to the 38th parallel.

This is the substance of what congressional watchdog committees will hear when the army is called up to explain how the Korean crisis caught the United States in the transition period between old and genuinely new armaments.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, a army chief of staff, stated in a speech on Feb. 27 that "except for prototypes we have not purchased a single new tank since the end of the war."

In a report for the last half of 1949, Secretary of the Army Gray said that three light units of the "postwar tank family" were in the final steps of completion prior to an exhaustive series of tests.

In his February speech, Collins said that the army had the prototype of a new medium tank and "designs" for a heavy tank.

Collins then emphasized that the army would not build any heavy tanks until it was "sure that we cannot knock out the heaviest of heavies with the improved guns and ammunition of our new light and medium tanks."

Since February, the army is known to have placed an order for a limited production of the new light tank, known as T-41. It is these tanks that could be produced in sufficient numbers to play a part in future phases of the Korean war.

In the meantime, American troops battling in Korea are getting more and better tanks than they started with one month ago. Pictures have been published showing General Pershing type tanks moving to the Korean battle-

Paralysis Rate Lower Than 1949

Washington, Aug. 3 (AP)—Acute poliomyelitis increased in the nation last week with 964 cases reported compared with 827 for the preceding week, the public health services said today.

For the calendar year, and for the current "disease" year, however, the nationwide total is below that of 1949 to date.

Thus far this year the 8,067 cases reported runs 1,135 less than the 8,202 cases to date last year.

The cumulative total for the disease year, 4,947 is far less than the 7,289 reported to date in 1949. The highest on record.

The "disease" year for polio begins with the seasonal low point reached in the 12th week of 1950. Texas reported the largest number of new cases last week, 107, compared with 111 the preceding week.

They Like George

New York — (AP) — Almost every club in the National Football League has approached Coach Red Strader of the New York Yanks with attractive trade bait in an effort to wrest backfield star George Taliaferro away from him. His conclusion regarding the recently obtained 1949 "rookie of the year," is "if he's that good, I think we'd better keep him."

Farm Prices Up 7 Per Cent for July Compared to June

Little Rock, Aug. 3 — (AP) — The Arkansas farmer received seven cents on the dollar more for his produce in mid-July than he did in mid-June.

The increase was greater for some products; less for others. But seven per cent was the overall average rise, the crop reporting service said.

The service reported that the Nationalist Warplanes Fly Mission

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 3 (AP) — For the second successive day Chinese Nationalist war planes took off today for unannounced destinations.

Presumably they are raiding Chinese Communist concentrations on the mainland which threaten to invade Quemoy. Quemoy is a Nationalist island just off the Communist port of Amoy on the China side of Formosa Strait.

Nationalists resumed their air activity yesterday, shortly after General MacArthur ended conferences with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on the defense of Formosa. The planes had been idle since the start of the Korean war at the request of President Truman.

There was much speculation in this Nationalist capital that General MacArthur will send American planes to Formosa to help guard against the possibility of a Communist invasion. The U. S. Seventh fleet is patrolling Formosa Strait to prevent a Red crossing, front.

July 15 index of prices received by Arkansas farmers was 13 per cent above July, 1949, and only 10 per cent below the all-time high of June, 1948.

DEAR PATRONS:

As manager of the Saenger Theatre, it gives me great pleasure to tell you that our city has been honored by being chosen for a special advance showing of the M-G-M production "STARS IN MY CROWN"

"STARS IN MY CROWN", has already been awarded the Parent's Magazine medal for outstanding merit, and is being hailed as one of the finest family pictures of 1950.

I personally consider "STARS IN MY CROWN" an exceptional entertainment and I urge you all to see it.

Sincerely,
Eddie Holland

G. W. LOOKADOO
Solicits Your Vote For PROSECUTING ATTORNEY
On August 8th

The Home People Have Spoken
The following are the results of the election on July 25:

Charlie Hackett, his home county — Miller:
Hackett's total vote 2360
His opponents 3655

Hackett lost his home county by . . . 1295 votes.
G. W. Lookadoo, his home county — Clark:
Lookadoo's total vote 3262
His opponents 1541

Lookadoo carried his home county by 1721 votes.

In addition, Talbot Feild, Jr. received more votes in Hempstead County than all three of his opponents combined. J. W. Patton, Jr. received almost twice as many votes in LaFayette county as his three opponents. Yes, Charlie Hackett alone of the four candidates for Prosecuting Attorney, failed to get a majority in his home county on July 25.

In addition, Charlie W. Hackett lost his home ward, which was Ward 4 in Texarkana, by a two to one vote — that vote being 255 for Hackett and 516 for his opponents.

G. W. Lookadoo carried his home ward, which was Ward 3 in Arkadelphia, by a three to one vote. Lookadoo received 565 votes and his opponents received 187 votes.

There must be a reason for a man losing his home ward and county.

A man must have the confidence of the people to properly enforce the law.

G. W. Lookadoo Is Your Qualified Candidate for Prosecuting Attorney

He is a native of the Eighth Judicial District, 46 years of age, married and has one son; educated in the schools and colleges in Arkansas; twenty-two years experience in the trial courts prosecuting and defending all types of criminal cases. He has proven his ability as a public official by being elected President of the Senate and chosen one of the five outstanding members by the press.

A Vote For G. W. Lookadoo Is a Vote For Law Enforcement

He is honest, energetic, conscientious, and will make a forceful prosecuting attorney. He has the confidence of the citizens of his home ward and county.

Think carefully before you vote to choose a man you are placing at the head of your law enforcement in this district.
